DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-61, drawn to heat transfer fluid mixture, classified in class 252, subclass 71.
 - II. Claims 62-64, drawn to a method of improving cooling of an object with a gas mixture, classified in class 34, subclass 428.
 - III. Claims 65-66, drawn to a method of improving heating of an object with a gas mixture, classified in class 34, subclass 487.
 - IV. Claims 67-76, drawn to a method of making a heat transfer fluid, classified in class 252, subclass 71.
2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:
 - Inventions I and II are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product, such as heating an object instead of cooling that object.
 - Inventions I and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product, such as cooling an object instead of heating that object.

- Inventions IV and I are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make another and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case, the process as independently claimed can be used to make another and materially different product, such as a heat transfer fluid consisting of at least one light gas and at least one heavy gas, where the heavy gas has a molecular weight that is only slightly greater, but less than a factor of two greater, than the molecular weight of the light gas.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
